Inductees: free

Participants will:

- Examine the leanings, biases, and principles the Supreme Court has adopted during Chief Justice Roberts' tenure.
- Do a deep dive of the uncodified rules used by judges to oversee negotiations in the reorganization process, with responsive judicial commentary
- Debate about ways that attorneys and courts are finding to address the inability of many consumer debtors to pay for bankruptcy services, the ethical implications of the practices, and ideas for legislative (and other) solutions
- Enjoy a discussion by an experienced judge, subchapter V trustee, and practitioner of new issues and strategies arising in subchapter V cases, with a look to its future uses.
- Examine the ways lenders and other creditors groups are providing liability relief to distressed companies through different structural financing solutions that also improve their positions at the expense of other existing lenders or other creditors, a practice sometimes referred to as “creditor-on-creditor violence.”
